THE WOMEN'S MEETING.

Important Meeting Brought Out a Resolution Created in the Court Room.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 30. The hearing in the Borden murder case was resumed at 10:45 this morning. Lizzie Borden had a fairly restful night. She was visited by her mother, Mrs. Emma, who remained with her until the hour for court arrived. Lizzie, upon entering the court room, greeted her counsel with smile.

Mrs. Adelade B. Churchill was the first witness. She said she lived next to the Borden house, and also the day before the day of the tragedy she saw Lizzie standing against the side of the door, apparently distressed about something. I opened the window and asked her what was the matter, and she said, "Oh, Mrs. Churchill, do come over; somebody has killed father." She was overjoyed to find where her father was. She replied, "In the sitting room." Asked her where she was when it happened, and she said she was in the barn.

A London Paper Demands the Government Prohibit the Entry of Imports or Merchandise from the Chinese Infected Ports.

LONDON, Aug. 29. A London firm has received an order from the authorities of Hamburg for 30,000 gallons of disinfecting fluid and 30 tons of disinfecting powder.

The Evening News has reopened agitation against the entry of pauper aliens. It demands that the government issue an order to prevent the entry of imports or immigrants from cholera-infested ports. It also demands that the government prohibit the entry of paupers from China.

WHINNEY said when she reached the wharf Lizzie was so much agitated she fainted her, fearing the would faint. Whinney could not remember that there was the least sign of blood on Lizzie's dress, hands or face at the time she first saw her. Her mother, Mrs. Jennings, told her own son, and her witness deposed finding Mrs. Borden. Mr. Jennings to severe cross-examination, dwelling particularly on the excited condition of Lizzie when witness was first called to the bar.

The artist copying swindler against whom citizens were warned had already been to the Borden house the day before, but did not remember Lizzie telling him, in answer to a question, that she went into the barn to get a piece of iron or to fix the windows with. This testimony created a sensation in the court room as it contradicted statements made by Lizzie Borden, who had gone to the barn for lead sinkers.

Witness Could Not Tell.

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 29. Many complaints are being made here that the men of the police force are not giving protection to women against cholera. Fishing vessels arriving from infected ports, such as Hayre, enter Southampton without any inspection of them or their crews.

SANFORD, Aug. 29.—Roy Pray, a blacksmith's helper at Sanford's Mill, attempted suicide by shooting this evening. He cannot recover. The cause was despondency.

SUDDEN DEATH
of CAPTAIN J. Sleeper, of Rockland.
ROCKLAND, Aug. 29.—Captain Henry J. Sleeper, chairman of the Knox county Board of Commissioners, died suddenly at the court house this afternoon.

THE BORDER MEETING.

Doug Clark Testifies that Lizzie Borden Wanted Prussic Acid.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 29.—In the Borden hearing court came in at 3 P. M. Eli Bence, drug clerk at the corner of South Main and Columbia street, testified that he saw Lizzie Borden in his store the day before the murder. She asked him for ten cents worth of Prussic acid to put on a sealkin sack or cape, but he told her he could not sell it without a physician's prescription.

Frank H. Kilroy, a medical student, testified that he was conversing with Mr. Bence in the store Wednesday morning. Witness was sitting in the shop when Miss Borden came in and Mr. Bence went behind the counter to wait upon her. He heard her say "Prussic acid" and him say "can't sell it without a license," and then he heard her say "sealkin cape," when she went out.

Frederick B. Hart, employed in the drug store, testified that he was back of the counter that morning when Miss Borden came in. Witness corroborated the testimony of the two previous witnesses in regard to the Prussic acid incident and then identified Miss Borden as the person who had asked for the stuff.

This afternoon Joseph Deroches testified that he was sawing wood in John Crowe's yard on the day of the tragedy. He saw no one going over the fence that day, nor did he see anybody in the next yard. He commenced work at 7 A. M.

Patrick H. Donerty, a police officer, testified as to the examination of the bodies and their appearance. As soon as he had commenced Lizzie bowed her head on her hand and appeared much affected. The house was searched throughout all but Emma's room and the cedar door was found locked. Miss Borden was asked by the witness where she was when the murder took place and she said "in the barn." She said she heard some kind of a peculiar noise while she was there, kind of scraping noise. The witness said that Lizzie said that neither Mr. Borden nor any other man who worked for Mr. Borden would hurt him. The witness and Officer Mulally found several hatchets in the cellar, but there was nothing particularly remarkable about them, except one, which had a very short handle. He could not tell whether it had a claw on it. Witness said that he had not remarked anything out of the way in Lizzie's appearance.

Michael Mullaly, a police officer, testified mainly corroborative of the preceding witness. Lizzie told him that she had seen a man about the yard that morning, dressed in dark clothes. He said but could see no blood on it or any of the others.

John Fleet, assistant city marshal, told of going to the house, finding the bodies and to a talk with Lizzie about the death of her parents. Lizzie had no idea how the deed was done or by whom, but she heard a man at the door about 9 that morning, talking with her father. The man talked like an Englishman but she hadn't seen him and did not know who it was. About two weeks before that a man had some words with her father relative to a store he wanted to hire. The witness said Maggie, the work girl, was in the house all the time, or about the house, but Lizzie did not think she heard anything about it.

She told the witness she had been in the barn for some time, half an hour, and came back to find that the murder had been committed. The witness asked Lizzie if she were in the barn half an hour and she qualified the statement by saying that she was in the barn 20 minutes to half an hour. When they were searching the house the witness said he came to a room which was locked. Lizzie said it was her father's room and the door was always locked. If the witness wanted to get in he could go around by the side stairs. The witness and did not go. Then he came to a room also locked, and asked to go in there. Lizzie told him there was not anything there but clothing and made no move to open the door. The witness insisted, and finally she produced a key and the door was opened. It was just as she said. When he came to Lizzie's room she said to the witness "There's not any use going in there for nobody can get a chance to put anything in there. I always lock my room door when leaving it."

At no time, the witness says, was Lizzie in tears.

Witness Fleet said there was one hatchet he considered had a suspicious look. It had the appearance of having been washed and wiped. He put it between two boxes out of the way, and next morning Officer Edson took the hatchet to the station. The witness could see no signs of any hair on it.

The court at this point adjourned to Tuesday.

That Suspicious Hatchet.

The counsel for the defense in the Borden case has been apprised of the location of the suspicious man, said to answer to the description given by Dr. Handy, and he is now being shadowed by detectives in the employ of the Misses Borden. Another story was given out to-night by Miss Lizzie's nearest friends, approved by her cousin, fittingly denies the story of a quarrel between the two Borden sisters. On the day when the "You gave me away" story was published, there was a call at the Borden household in whom Miss Lizzie had more than a girlish interest.

Miss Emma joked her about the visit and then said something which caused Miss Lizzie to blush and accuse her sister of saying things which might possibly affect her maidenly reserve. "Why, Emma," she said, "I'll never speak to you again." Two minutes later the sisters were conversing in the most endearing way. The defendant's lawyers were given an authority to-night for the following:

Miss Lizzie Jordan probably heard her mother scream down, perhaps heard her fall. She (Miss Lizzie) was busy clattering about the room, putting iron on the fire, and pounding them on the ironing board.

Hearing her mother fall would readily account for her readiness to say she had entered the room, cleaned the front door, and went directly to her room.

Carrollton Committee Organized this week in Maine.

Homestead, Aug. 29.—There was much expectancy and sub-had excitement in Homestead when on the 28th arrived the news of the reported Homestead disaster. The evening of August 28th the committee in getting up a meeting, was aware that the railroad would not be accessible to the participants in the meeting and this problem was solved by bringing in the

Two hundred people from the surrounding town were assembled. It is for the men are scattered here and there, waiting, nor do the majority expect any sort of victory. They are rapidly organizing a surprisingly strong, if it considering the number of men and inhabitants of mass and trades, all sitting here in line and show much enthusiasm. The firm naturally indicates our right is concerned that the strike is over.

It was learned this afternoon that the Pinkerton agency some time ago sent forty men into the mill as non-union workers. These men entered in small squads and were taken into the strikers' ranks. They gained the confidence of the amalgamated workers and have, it is said, gathered considerable evidence against participants in the riot of July 6, against whom they will make informations. It is also said that they have discovered the hiding place of the captives and will proceed against those who have possession of them.

The Eastern Maine State Fair will open to-day and judging from the appearances yesterday the city, the park and the halls will be crowded with visitors from all over the State and other States.

The fine weather yesterday enabled the exhibitors to get their displays into position and they were busily at work during the day at the park and halls arranging their property in an attractive manner. The appearance yesterday indicated that there would be many features which will interest.

A WHIG reporter visited the parks and halls yesterday and viewed the preparations in progress for the opening to-day.

The horse department naturally first attracts the attention at Mapleswood, and it appears to be well filled. At the large stable at the upper end of the grounds is the Nelson string of horses headed by the great Nelson himself. The new bicycle sulky which Mr. Nelson will use in the races is an object of special interest at the fair.

The Pooler horses twenty in number from Skowhegan, among which is the celebrated Beechwood, are quartered in one of the large stables at the northeast end of the park. A new stable near by this one was built this year and it is occupied by trotters of more or less note. The speedy animals of Mr. Marshall of Belfast, arrived in the city yesterday. The stalls are well filled and will all be occupied it is understood.

New stalls have been built along the lower end of the grounds and they will furnish very comfortable quarters.

There were hardly any cattle to be seen on the grounds yesterday afternoon, but the Burleigh, Libby & Maine State College herds arrived on the afternoon train and will be in their stalls to-day and through the week. No sheep had appeared on the grounds in the afternoon. There were some swine and poultry to be seen in the rear of the fair yesterday.

The track is in splendid condition and many of the trotters were to be seen going over the smooth surface with rapid bursts of speed, others contenting themselves with a jog for exercise.

The damage to the buildings of the park done by the cyclone earlier in the summer has been repaired and certain minor changes made which will be advantageous. The building devoted to the superintendent of the horse department and the police has been located next to the president's headquarters near the entrance.

Those who will make displays at Exhibition Hall under the grand stand, were engaged yesterday in arranging their goods. Wood, Bishop & Co., Dole & Fogg, Morse & Co., P. H. Vose & Co., and the Noyes & Nutter Manufacturing Company, occupy their usual positions and space and were at work yesterday arranging their customary fine and extensive exhibition. Some farming implements and produce were in position in the hall beyond yesterday. The building of the Vassalboro Wooden Ware Company will be used this year as usual for the display of butter, cheese, etc. The platform beyond used for farming implements, has a new covering and a few implements were under the canvass yesterday.

The president's headquarters building has been raised so that the first floor is on level with the track, making a well appreciated improvement there. A new building has been erected on the brow of the hill above the main entrance. One room will be devoted to the Board of Agriculture, another to the Maine Farmer and a third to the press.

There is a large number of side shows and fair establishments at the park and they were doing some business yesterday. Quite a number of people, including some from out of town who have come to attend the fair, were on the grounds yesterday.

At Norumbega Hall the usual booths for the displays of exhibitors have been arranged and the hall will wear its usual handsome appearance to-day at the opening of the fair. On the stage is the taxidermist display and a fine exhibition of fancy work, etc., will be made about the hall. Maj. Rollins is again in charge this year which insure success in arrangement and carrying out of the week's programme. An usual Norumbega will be a place of much interest to all and it will, of course, be largely visited.

At the City Hall an extensive display of fruit will be made. That well known horticulturist, Mr. S. C. Harlow, was easily engaged yesterday in making an attractive exhibit. The platform is devoted to the art department and many beautiful pieces of skilled work by Bangor and other artists were placed in position yesterday. It will be a very attractive spot. A. L. Simpson, Esq., is in charge of City Hall.

To-day's programme of races includes the 3 minute class, purse $200, the 2 27 class, purse $300, and the fairs of $180. There is a fine field of entries and some excellent races may be expected. The track is in fine condition.

AN UNUSUAL SHOW.

Miss Jessie Yeaman in "12 P. M." The new musical comedy "12 P. M." with Miss Jessie Yeaman in the leading role was the opening attraction of fair week last night at the Opera House and there was a good sized audience in attendance. The plot deals with an uncle of several young women, who having left his property to them, keeps people away from the house by superstition. The young women with the aid of a newspaper reporter put up a ghost job on him.

The first act is a parlor scene and introduces members of the family who greet "Jacqueline," Miss Yeaman, Charlie Colman, of the Daffy Doctor, and two foreign noblemen, who propose to the young women who are supposed to be wealthy. In this act there are several songs and dances, among them being a pleasing song by Miss Levere accompanied by Miss Yeaman on the guitar. Some clever work in imitation of well known actors is done by Mr. Al Hampton.

The second act has the ghostly features, which are of a novel character, and well managed. Miss Yeaman gave several well executed song recitations and the other songs and dances were very good.

The concluding representation of "12 P. M." will be given to-night.

BANGOR & BAR HARBOR RAILROAD COMPANY'S STEAMERS.

The steamer Bedgwick made her last trip to Islesboro and Castine yesterday. During this week she will run excursions from down river towns to Bangor and return to accommodate those who wish to attend the fair. Next Saturday she goes to Swan Island and Bass Harbor to make an excursion to Bar Harbor. Steamer Henry Morrison will make her last trip to Bass Harbor next Saturday. Steamer Clarendon will then continue on the route making three trips per week. The steamers have all been liberally patronized this season and the management deserve credit for the success with which they have met.

Mr. C. V. Baker, who has resided on Fifteenth street died very suddenly at Lake Side Campground yesterday noon of heart trouble. The remains will be brought here to-day. He leaves a wife and two children.

HOULTON'S FIRE

Additional Particulars of the Destruction in that Town.

Our Houlton correspondent gives fuller particulars of the fire at that place on Sunday, which was announced in the telegraphic columns of Monday's WING. He writes:

Houlton was visited by one of the most disastrous fires about 1 o'clock Sunday morning that it ever met with. It was the burning of L. T. Clough's livery stable and residence, which adjoined the stable. Mr. Clough and his hostler had just retired about half an hour before any alarm was given. The hostler who slept in a small room adjoining the stable, was the first to discover the flames, which already had made great headway.

He at once rushed into the stable and cut the halters of the horses numbering about a dozen. The horses backed out of the stalls but the hostler and Mr. Clough's son were unable to drive the animals out and eight perished in the flames. All the fine Bangor buggies and double seated carriages were destroyed. In the residence was Mr. Clough's aged mother who was not expected to live, being ill about one week. She was immediately removed to a neighbor's residence nearby. Most of the household goods were saved. Insurance about $2,000. The adjoining buildings were saved by the Sockanoseet Hose Company, who were on hand at the first alarm as usual.

They are a crowd of brave fellows and did excellent work under the competent supervision of Chief Engineer Samuel Webber. Through their bravery four of the horses were captured after chopping through the side of the building. The wind was blowing from the northeast and accompanied by a slight fall of rain, which aided in abating the spreading of the flames. The cinders were flying in all directions and had it been a dry night and a heavy wind Houlton would soon have been a hustling town of the past. To-day all that remains of the once prosperous village is a mass of blackened ruins.

Several families occupied the upper part of the residence, one of them losing all their property. The loss is probably $4,000. The fire company worked from 1 to 6 A. M. All the fine sleighs were destroyed.

The fine brick block was covered with large cinders which were extinguished by the rain, and large pieces of burning shingle were blown over the town but the
